handpunch terminal range

The need to identify people is as old as humankind. People recognize each other by sight and sound. However, in today's complex society, it's impossible to personally know everyone and as a consequence, systems rely on recognizing a credential rather than the individual.

The HandPunch time and attendance systems recognize people-not credentials-using physical characteristics of hand geometry to identify an individual.

The HandPunch improves payroll accuracy and simplicity by eliminating 'buddy-punching' and time fraud. Suitable for businesses of all sizes which continually strive to control costs.
